

“We Serve A Most Generous God” James 1:5 The Book of James takes us from orthodoxy in knowing the Word to orthopraxy or how to grow up spiritually once we know it. And so for us who consistently learn to consider the meaning behind our trials, it will be perseverance through testing producing joy in cycles within the spiritual life. Only God’s solution of His problem-solving techniques can stop adversity in its tracks from becoming stress in the soul. A believer with faith persistence trusts God even if he has no clue as to why! But just because someone has a certain degree of knowledge, does not mean he will apply it in time of crisis. Yes, practice does make perfect! Biblical truth is sufficient to complete us to the point where we are lacking nothing in the spiritual realm. The problem is that emotion is not the standard criterion for evaluating God.
